What's Been Going On

I hope everyone had a restful weekend. It sure did go by fast.

We are still practicing for ISAT. It is important that everyone is here everyday to help get the preparation they need for this test. The students are working hard in class, so I am sure they will all do just fine on the test.

Our Breakfast Challenge is over, but I still encourage you to eat breakfast everyday. It helps you stay focused.

Mad minutes will now be a part of our every day homework. The students will need to write every fact that they miss or don't get to three times each.

As always if you have any questions or concerns, please feel free to contact me.

Inside the Books

Math: We are still continuing in chapter 4 with different kinds of graphs. Keep practicing your multiplication facts. We are adding our 6's and 7's this week, and some of us are still struggling with 0-5's. Keep practicing every day. That is the only way to get better.

Language Arts: We are moving on to the story Rocks in His Head. New vocabulary words and spelling words go along with this story. Possessive pronouns will be our topic in grammar.

Social Studies: We are still in Chapter 8 learning about our government. We have discussed the different branches of the government and now we have focused on learning the different parts of each level of government.
